DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

EASTERN DATES TO OCTOBER 1.

EASTERN STATES.

Fright of Ballot Box Stuffers and Perjurers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—It is stated that Alderman Barker and ex-Auditor O'Brien, of the fifth ward, Brooklyn, fled last night on account of the publication of affidavits proving that they had stuffed the ballot boxes of that ward at the last election, and then perjured themselves by swearing to a statement which convicted Mr. J. Welden of the crime.

Fourteen Vessels Wrecked on Lake Erie.

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Fourteen vessels, so far, were reported yesterday sunk or beached on Lake Erie during the storm on Saturday night. So far only one life is reported lost.

Held to Answer for Fraud.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—At the further hearing of the case of Geo. Rankin, charged as being implicated with Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Harry in obtaining by fraud $20,000 of City Fund Bonds, the justice directed the prisoner to be held in one hundred thousand dollar bail to answer the charge of conspiracy to defraud the city.

Destructive Fire at Bridgeport.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 30.—A fire broke out in Nickerson's lumber yard at Bridgeport to-night, and burned ten buildings valued at $150,000. The buildings were set on fire.

More Indians Going to Washington.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—The Indian delegations left for Washington in charge of Capt. Alvord. Santa Anna and Big Tree were placed in custody and committed to jail to await further orders.

From the Oil Regions.

TITUSVILLE, Sept. 30.—The oil regions are intensely excited over the movement to suspend production. The movement is almost universal. Probably not over fifty wells are producing to-night. In some localities violence is reported in carrying out the order. The well at Rigge' was burned, and the engines destroyed by large hammers and the tanks tapped. Some owners are still holding out against it, but it is thought they will get yield. The effect of the movement is felt in advanced prices.

The Democrats of Missouri.

ST. JOSEPH, Sept. 30.—At a meeting of the Straightout Democracy to-night, delegates were elected to attend the State Convention at Jefferson City, October 4th. Resolutions were passed endorsing the ticket nominated and the platform adopted at Louisville, and the delegates were instructed to vote for the nomination of a full Straightout ticket.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Stamp Duties.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Stamp duty upon all documents except bank checks, drafts or orders expires to day in accordance with the recent act of Congress. Hereafter no stamps are required on any legal documents whatever, no paper being subject to stamp duty except bank checks, drafts or orders as above mentioned. No stamp is required on foreign bills of exchange.

Importation of Diseased Cattle Prohibited.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Collector of Customs have been directed by the Treasury Department to suspend the importation of neat cattle hides coming from the infected districts of Europe, unless accompanied by a circular certificate showing them to be free from disease.

Important to Liquor Dealers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The Collector of Internal Revenue decided that wholesale and retail liquor dealers may continue and sell malt liquors under the special tax having receipts as such, without being assessed as malt liquor dealers, and the collection of taxes assessed contrary to this construction shall be suspended until the question is brought before Congress.

Colored Voters of New England Calling on Grant.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—A Committee of the Colored Men's Convention of New England, which met at Faneuil Hall, Boston, on the 5th ult., called on the President to-day, and presented a letter from the Convention. The letter was delivered by George Ruffin, who made a few remarks. The President, in reply, expressed his gratification that his efforts to secure protection to life and property of all classes throughout the country had been so fully appreciated, and thanked the committee for the kind manner in which they had alluded to his action toward their race.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

Gambetta Censured.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The government condemns Gambetta's course in addressing the people in the provinces. His speeches are considered as indiscreet and ill-timed, and needlessly agitating the country.

The Pope's Movements.

ROME, Sept. 30.—The Pope to-day went out beyond the precincts of the Vatican for the first time since the occupation of Rome, and proceeded to Portudellin and Scesia.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—As usual the press denounces the verdict of the jury in the Fair case, but give no reasons to prove that the twelve men perjured themselves. In reference to Mrs. Fair's trial the Alta this morning says the following which is true: "Three minutes after the jury retired to the room on Friday, nine ballots were taken, resulting ten for acquittal and two for murder in the first degree. The latter being Byington and McGee. No change took place until 8 o'clock on Sunday evening when Byington and McGee succumbed and agreed to an acquittal. Word was sent to Judge Reardon, but as counsel could not be found they were kept together for the night. The only reason assigned by a majority of the jury from the first was they had a doubt in their minds and would never consent to render any verdict but acquittal. The Foreman, Byington, held out longest and discussed the question of insanity with six fellows, endeavoring to convince them that the defense had not by a preponderance of evidence established their theory. He failed to make an impression on any of them and having fought for nearly 60 hours come to the conclusion that the combined judgment of his ten colleagues might be superior to his and that his conclusions might possibly be wrong, he determined that if he erred he would do so on the side of mercy. He was first to sign the verdict of not guilty without taking final ballot.

During the year past the tax collector of this city paid into the treasury over two million, eight hundred thousand dollars.

Supervisors have partly resolved to have forty-one election precincts in this city at the next election.

A report has just been received at the Police Office that a man has been shot in a saloon on Market street.

Weather foggy and disagreeable.

OREGON.

The coaches passing through La Grande are now crowded with passengers.

Gov. Bennett, of Idaho, was to speak on political topics at La Grande on the 28th ult.

Warren Cranston, of Marion county, has made 20,000 pounds of cheese the past season.

The "Bybee" mare bunt "Fire Fly" in a three mile race at the Wasco County Fair last week.

A tanner of Fort Laramie recently purchased two eight mule teams to be taken to Wyoming.

A drove of 110 fat hogs were recently driven from Union county to supply the Baker county mining camps.

Gen. Wright, of Grand Ronde valley, has raised a cucumber over a yard long. He will pickle it in an cave trough.

Union county has a sixteen year old boy who dispenses the gospel. There are in Portland a great many, older and younger, who dispense with a good deal of it.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN STATES.

Opinions of the Fair Verdict East.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The verdict in the Fair case is received here with general surprise and indignation. The Tribune comments on the case from the supposition standpoint that the plea of insanity was used to secure acquittal.

Speaking of the Fair trial the Times says it is a strong statement to say that nothing more infamous, deplorable than this result has been achieved by an American jury for many years, but the circumstances warrant the expression that it would certainly be an interesting subject of inquiry, as to what could be the mental and moral constitution of 12 men who agreed upon this verdict and the motives or rationalization by which they arrived at it.

Crisis in Japanese Affairs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Washington dispatches say that private advices from Japan report that a crisis in public affairs indicates an ascendency of the Japanese party over the reformers, and made for the present the spread of civilization in the Empire. Minister Mori was to be succeeded by a representative of the non-progressives. Horace Capron, who went from Washington as Commissioner of Agriculture, to fill the same post in Japan, has been discharged. E. Peshine Smith, who went to organize the last department, has also been discharged. Information from Europe says the Embassy to the Western Treaty Powers are stranded in London without funds or authority. Work on the war vessels in New York is stopped for the want of funds. On account of these complications, Mr. Northrup, of Connecticut, State Commissioner of Education, declines a similar position tendered him some time ago by the Japs.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—The Commercial this morning has the following double-leaded editorial paragraph: "A dispatch to us from a distinguished Democrat, who is doubtless well informed, states that the charge in the New York Tribune against Speaker Blaine is without foundation. Mr. Blaine was not a member of Congress at the time of the alleged contract with the Kansas Pacific Railroad."

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—The Trustees of the Odd Fellows College and Home, at a meeting this afternoon manifested a disposition to take the responsibility of accepting the Wells Kilburn tract at Napa, by itself and to proceed to improving for building. This property has nearly doubled in value since it was conditionally deeded to the Board of Trustees. The price asked for fifty acres of the Campbell tract is regarded as too high to be seriously considered. There is ten thousand dollars coin in the Board Treasury and about nineteen thousand pledged in subscriptions.

The City Treasury, by count last night contained three hundred and twenty thousand dollars in coin.

WATSONVILL

The Daily Oregonian.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 2, 1872.

A Little Plain Talk.

The Bulletin of yesterday morning, under the head of "Politics and Personalities" has an article a column and a half in length, composed of fulsome laudations of Mr. Ben Holladay and a defense of that gentleman against some personal attack which he seems afraid the OREGONIAN is going to make upon him. With the praise of Mr. Holladay we have no fault to find: right or wrong, it is expected of the Bulletin, and that is probably a justification, as the world goes.

But the Bulletin says the OREGONIAN has "proclaimed its determination to prosecute the vindictive partisan war to the utmost against Mr. Holladay, as the chief, and against his Railroad and other important enterprises, as the subordinate objects." The OREGONIAN has proclaimed no such thing. The article in which the Bulletin claims to have discovered this remarkable declaration of war against Mr. Holladay and his Railways, &c., was written during the late Senatorial contest and had reference solely to the oppressive and tyrannical manner in which the railway power had been used in the politics of the State, to override the wishes of the Republican party, and contained not an allusion to Mr. Holladay's personal character or private life. With these the OREGONIAN has not meddled and will not meddle. As to Mr. Holladay's "Railroad and other important enterprises," they are just the same to us as anybody else's Railroad and other important enterprises. Notwithstanding they are carried on with private capital—excepting always the large donations of public lands—they nevertheless deeply concern the whole community, and are therefore legitimate subjects of discussion, and their management, so far as it affects the public, may, without impropriety, be commented on in the columns of a public journal. This is not only the right, but the duty of him who pretends to conduct a newspaper in the interests of the people. The OREGONIAN has heretofore stated its position in regard to this, as well as all other public enterprises. They are to be encouraged, fostered, builded up in all legitimate ways; and those who engage in them are entitled to the same exemption from malicious or wanton attacks that other persons expect to enjoy when pursuing a lawful calling. They are to be subjected to criticism, and the conduct of those engaged in them is subject to censure whenever they are used as engines of tyranny. The OREGONIAN has spoken freely of the manner in which the politics of this State—and particularly of Multnomah county—has been made subservient to the wishes or interests of the railway companies, and we would not now recall any statement of fact we have made in that connection, if we could. The interests of truth and the welfare of the Republican party alike demanded the protest to be made. If there shall never again be occasion for a protest against the arbitrary course of the railway companies in political matters—if hereafter they shall refrain from attempting to subvert the Republican party to their own purposes—then there will be no more complaint upon that score. If, however, they shall pursue a different course, we shall do our best endeavors to make good our promise to fight it out to victory, in the interests of the people, "though it take years to reach that end." To this course we pledge the OREGONIAN, and have no fears of the consequences.

We trust we have now said enough to make the position of the OREGONIAN thoroughly understood, if it was not understood before. We dismiss the subject, therefore, with the hope that we may not have occasion to recur to it. The Presidential election, will be at hand in a month, and Republicans who wish to carry the State by the largest majority that the circumstances of the campaign render possible, will for the time being, at least, turn their backs to the recent conflict inside the party, and their faces resolutely to the common foe.

Appropriations.

No one who has watched the proceedings of the present session of the Legislature, can have failed to notice the great number of measures brought forward, requiring appropriations of money. This section of the State has one matter and that section another, which demand immediate attention and will draw out of the State Treasury large amounts of money.

It cannot be doubted that in some cases the true interests of the State are promoted by appropriations out of the Treasury for purposes that may be considered local in character; but the greater number of cases this species of legislation is simply a scheme of private speculation. Each of these private jobs is put up by certain interested parties, who watch the movements of the Legislature till they can effect an alliance with all others similarly situated, and the whole batch are pushed through on the last days of the session, without sufficient attention to the question whether the proposed appropriation ought to be made at all, and with no adequate protection against incapacity or fraud in the expenditure of the money appropriated. Here a wagon road is constructed, and there one is purchased, out of the public purse, without stopping to consider the question whether it will accommodate a sufficient population to justify the outlay, or whether it can be kept open and in repair without still further expenditures being made from time to time indefinitely. We do not mean to say that the appropriation measures and road bills brought before the present session of the Legislature are such as we have been describing, but we have no doubt some of them, if carefully weighed, would be found to be greatly to the advantage of some one or more of the friends who are laboring to secure their passage, nor that the question whether or not they will be for the public good will not in every case be free from doubt.

Our legislators should bear in mind that there is now great stringency in the money market, and that times are likely to be still harder before relief comes. The produce market is sluggish and prices are low. Our farmers cannot realize but sixty cents per bushel for their wheat, and other produce is at about the same figure relatively. Under such circumstances the people cannot well stand a great increase of taxation. Some proper encouragement bills are no doubt times requires that a stringency of the closely scrutinized and carefully measures be. The people of Oregon are not stingy-hearted, they expect their representatives will be vigilant in guarding their rights in the matter of taxation. We shall take occasion to refer to these measures again.

Snow fell at Meacham's, in the Blue Mountains last week to the depth of six inches. An event not before known at this season of the year.

Mr. Corbett's Withdrawal.

A STATEMENT BY ONE OF HIS CONFIDENTIAL PERSONAL FRIENDS.

We take the subjoined letter of Hon. G. Webster, State Senator from Douglas, Coos and Curry, from the Statesman of yesterday. It completely vindicates the conduct of Senator Corbett and his friends, and places Senator Corbett's withdrawal from the contest in its true light. Mr. Webster was one of Mr Corbett's warmest supporters and confidential friends during the entire contest. But here is the letter:

SALEM, Sept. 29, 1872.

EDITOR STATESMAN:—In your issue of this morning, appears a statement with reference to the cause of Mr. Corbett's withdrawal as a candidate for U. S. Senator, which I believe to be unjust to that gentleman. I have some knowledge of the circumstances which led Mr. Corbett to withdraw, and deem it but justice that they should be made public through your columns.

It had been previously agreed upon between Mr. Corbett and his friends, that, whenever, in the judgment of one or two of their number, it became evident that our candidate could not be elected, his name should be withdrawn. In consultation on Saturday morning, I, myself expressed my belief that it was impossible to elect Mr. Corbett, and that it would be unwise for him to allow his name to be used further in the contest. Mr. Corbett and a number of his friends wished to continue the contest till Monday next; nevertheless, Mr. Corbett said that he had assured his friends that he would withdraw whenever any of his friends desired it, and would not violate that pledge even to be elected. He said that he would leave it entirely with me to say whether his name should be withdrawn or not. I told him that I could not vote to continue the Senatorial contest till another week, and that I desired his name withdrawn; and I left him at a late hour in the morning—after the Senate had been in session for half an hour—with the understanding that his name be withdrawn from the contest. And, I will add, that I have the most reliable information that his letter of withdrawal was written immediately after I left his company.

Very respectfully yours,

G. WEBSTER.

Lord Hatherly's Successor.

The cable dispatches from London of the 30th announced the resignation of Lord High Chancellor Atherly. [The name should be Hatherly.—ED.] In all probability his successor will be Sir Roundell Palmer, lately connected with the Geneva Arbitration, and one of England's most distinguished jurists. Mr. Palmer would probably have held the seat of Lord Chancellor ere this but for his disagreement with the Gladstone Government on the Irish question.

OREGON LEGISLATURE.

Seventh Biennial Session.

Senate.

MORNING SESSION.

Senate met at the usual morning hour, with President Fay in the Chair. Mr. Cornelius absent.

Prayer offered by Rev. Wm. Bowerstock.

Journal of yesterday read and approved.

Mr. Myers, from Committee on Ways and Means, reported back H. B. No. 10, authorizing the Secretary of State to sell copies of the Code, with recommendation that it pass the Senate.

Mr. Tolen, from Committee on Elections, reported back S. B. No 9, relative to elections and the mode of filling vacancies in office, with recommendation that it pass.

Mr. Brown, of Baker, from select committee to whom was referred the report of the Investigating Committee appointed at last session, reported back the report without recommendation.

Mr. Dolph presented a minority report from the same committee, stating that the committee had had no meeting, and were therefore unprepared to report.

Mr. Brown, of Baker, introduced the following resolution: That the printed report of the Investigating Committee appointed by the last session, be referred to the Committee on Printing, with instructions to examine the report and allow a reasonable compensation for printing five hundred copies of said report.

Mr. Dolph rose to a point of order, claiming that the Senate was not authorized to give such instructions, without joint action of both Houses.

The President decided the point of order not well taken.

Mr. Watson thought this session had no right to provide for the payment of bills against the State which were contracted by the authority of the last session.

Mr. Baldwin said the duty of this committee was only to report the amount due for such printing, leaving it in the hands of this body whether to appropriate the sum reported or not, as they may see fit.

Mr. Dolph moved to strike out that part of the resolution ordering the committee to allow reasonable compensation for printing, and insert instructions to the committee to report what would be a reasonable allowance for the work at the rates fixed by law.

Amendment adopted and the resolution adopted as amended.

Mr. Crystal introduced S. B. No. 37, designating Monmouth College, Polk county, as the State University. Read first time and ordered printed.

Mr. Brown, of Baker, introduced S. B. No. 38, to provide for organizing and caring for the deaf and dumb of Oregon. Read first time and ordered printed.

S. B. No. 34, relative to port wardens on the Columbia and Willamette rivers, was read second time and referred to Committee on Commerce.

S. B. No. 36, to encourage immigration by appropriating moneys to assist the State Agricultural Society in publishing and disseminating information in regard to the resources of Oregon. Read second time and referred to Joint Committee on Immigration.

A communication from the Governor announced that he had signed S. B. No. 28, in regard to paying mileage of members of the Legislature.

S. B. No. 10, to amend Section 3, Chapter 3, of the General Laws was ordered engrossed for third reading to-morrow.

S. B. No. 9, to amend the law relative to elections, was taken up and amendments adopted, when the bill was ordered engrossed for third reading to-morrow.

Mr. Bellow gave notice of the introduction of a bill to create Board of Equalization.

Senate adjourned till 10 o'clock to morrow morning.

House.

MORNING SESSION.

At the call to order, the Speaker introduced Rev. Mr. Dunne, of Salem, who opened the House with prayer.

Absent at roll-call, Messrs. Allen, Bentley, Cooper, Hodgkins and Simpson.

S. B. Nos. 11 and 13, which had already passed the Senate, were read second time in the House.

S. B. No — provide for and gives right to married women to sell or otherwise dispose of property when their husbands have been absent for the period of one year.

Petitions were offered by Messrs. Burbank, Patton, Colter, Crawford, Stott, Allen, Earle and Cranor, making in all a formidable pile of documents, all of which prayed the passage of a more stringent law relative to the sale of liquors.

The Committee on Roads and Highways recommend, in the Trask river wagon road bill, that the appropriation be amended in section 2 to $10,000 instead of $20,000. The amendment was adopted and the bill ordered re-engrossed.

A message from the Governor was read, in which it was stated that His Excellency had signed the S. B. for the payment of mileage.

On the part of the select committee to whom was referred the bill to provide payment for the scalps of wild animals, reported back the same with amendments, and recommended the passage of the bill. The amendments provide punishment for claiming bounty more than once on the same scalp, and fixes the date on which the act shall take effect. The whole matter was finally referred to Committee of the Whole.

Mr. LaDow's bill, for protection against trespass of cattle and regulating and defining a lawful fence in the county of Umatilla, with the recommendation of the select committee to whom it had been referred, was amended so as to include the county of Wasco. It was ordered re-engrossed and read a third time to-morrow.

Mr. Walker of Jackson offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, whose duty it shall be to examine the swamp land law passed at the last session, and report by bill such amendments as may be necessary to secure the rights of the actual settlers on said lands, and such other amendment as may be deemed necessary.

Adopted, and Messrs. Walker, Patton, Burbank, Waldron and Wright were appointed said committee.

Mr. Giegler introduced a bill concerning fees of officers, which was read by title.

Mr. Simpson offered the following J. R.:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands of both houses are instructed to examine the books of the different land departments, comprising the Willamette and La Grande districts, Surveyor-General, and proceedings of the Board of Land Commissioners for the sale of school lands and the management of the common school fund, and report on or before the first Monday in October.

Adopted unanimously.

Bills to amend the boundaries of Curry county, and to incorporate Junction City, were introduced and read; also a bill appointing a Board of Commissioners for the erection of an Insane Asylum, introduced by Mr. Cranor of Linn.

Mr. Patton introduced a bill providing for the manner in which elections shall be contested, and also a bill passed first reading which repeals sec. 2 of the general laws relative to enclosures.

Mr. Andrews offered a bill regulating and governing the Penitentiary.

Mr. Caples presented a petition from the officers of the Oregon Children's Aid Society, requesting an appropriation of $3,000 to aid of that society, and the same gentleman introduced a bill to provide for said appropriation.

S. B. No. 5, a bill to protect game, came up for second reading.

Mr. Bliss moved to read by title, under suspension of the rules.

Mr. Shaw objected on account of numerous amendments which had been added.

Mr. Langell also objected, because of provisions in the bill which, in unsettled portions of the State, it would be absurd to think of carrying out.

Mr. Burbank was willing to have it read by title, but wanted it in Committee of the Whole.

On motion of Mr. Bliss, to suspend rules and read by title prevailed, and the bill was read by title.

On motion of Mr. Bliss, referred to Committee of the Whole.

Superintendent of Schools of Multnomah county, was invited to a seat within the bar.

Mr. Burbank offered a joint resolution—Committee appointed to investigate penitentiary—to the two members from the House and one from the Senate. Adopted without dissent. Messrs. Maillock and Patton were appointed on part of the House.

Mr. Patton introduced a bill to provide for the assessment and collection of taxes, which passed first and second reading.

A Senate bill, for relief of Curry county, on second reading was referred to Committee on Claims.

S. B. No. 20, providing for the election of a Register at La Grande Land Office, and further providing for the sale of public lands in the La Grande district.

Mr. Patton offered a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of State and State Treasurer to publicly destroy all such documents, vouchers, bonds, etc., as have been examined prior to July 1, 1872, and that the fact of the destruction of all bonds shall be entered on the record of all redeemed and cancelled bonds, and signed by the officers destroying the same.

Mr. Caples was not prepared to give his assent to this resolution. There would be plenty of room to store all such documents in the new State Capitol, and understood that it was on account of the scarcity of room in the Secretary of State's office that led to the offering of this resolution.

The House was of the same opinion as Mr. Caples, and laid the resolution on the table.

Adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House was called to order at the hour appointed.

Absent—Messrs. Andrews, Burbank, Collier, Cooper, Cranor, Clow, Curran, Langell, Stephenson, Walker.

Mr Simpson introduced a bill with the following title: A bill to authorize the State of Oregon to acquire the ownership of the Canal and Locks at the Wallamet Falls by lease, and to make an appropriation for the purchase of the same. The bill provides for the election of three persons as a Board of Canal Commissioners, the election of whom is to be done in Joint Convention of the present Legislature. The Board is to be authorized to make an agreement with the Wallamet Falls Lock and Canal Co. whereby said company shall lease to the State for a period of ten years the Canal and Locks now in process of construction by them. The lease is to be made at any time after the Canal and Locks may have been completed, and the rent paid therefor, is a sum not exceeding $60,000 per annum.

The rules were suspended that the bill might be read by title. As soon as the usual steps in regard to this bill were taken, the House adjourned after being in session about 10 minutes.

WEDNESDAY MORNING OCTOBER 2 1872

CITY.

STRUGGLE FOR A CHILD.—A rather interesting case of assault was tried before Judge Denny yesterday morning The case is one well calculated to attract public attention and at the same time reflect no great amount of credit on the parties charged with having made the assault In fact, from the evidence adduced in the case we are forced to the conclusion that the assault while it could not be considered aggravated in character was a clear defined instance of gross and unmanly cowardice

An account was given yesterday morning of the lady Mrs Edwards who fainted on Washington street. From the action of the woman at the time it seemed evident that domestic trouble of some kind was the cause of her temporary fit of insanity If appears that a warrant was issued by the Judge Denny yesterday on the charge of Mrs Edwards, for the arrest of Dr Glass, D Jacobi and A C Wiley These parties were taken into custody but released on bail Yesterday morning the case came up for trial From all we have been able to learn the following are the particulars of this case About four months ago a lady came to this city from Southern Oregon, young lady to consult Dr Glass The young lady was [illegible] and wished to take such a course as would hide from the eyes of the world her crime and shame She became a patient of Doctor Glass and at the expiration of fifteen days from the time of her arrival here she gave birth to an infant As soon as the mother was able she started home leaving her illegitimate offspring in the care of Dr Glass This gentleman placed the infant under the care of Mrs Edwards and agreed to pay her the sum of $25 per month for its keeping Soon after the young mother reached her home in Southern Oregon she was taken suddenly sick and died from congestion of the brain, brought on by cold and exposure For the first month the stipulated price was paid but after that time the monthly installments were withheld for some reason At last—so Mrs Edwards testified—the doctor wrote her a letter, in which he stated that the mother was dead and he (the doctor) knew of no other course to pursue but to send the child to the poor house Rather than see the child become an inmate of that institution, Mrs Edwards pleaded with her husband to be allowed to keep it, without compensation How well she succeeded in her undertaking was apparent to those who saw the child now offered to pay her Mrs Edwards again to think that it would never be called for and grew to regard it with the same degree of maternal affection as she would her own offspring Last Friday, Dr Glass accompanied by Jacobi and Dray, went to the house of Mrs Edwards in East Portland Those three men—so the testimony runs—met her at the kitchen door, when Glass said that he had come for the child Mrs Edwards replied that he (Glass) could see the child, but could not take it away Glass said he would have the child and caught hold of it A fierce struggle ensued in which Glass, Dray and Jacobi participated Mrs Edwards was pushed back against the door and her head and shoulders hurt She still held on to the child and struggled desperately, until some one of the three parties tripped her foot, when she started to fall, but was caught by her son in law The infant in the meantime was forcibly torn from her arms and handed into the keeping of Jacobi, who it appears was not as active in the affair as the other two When the demand was first made for the infant, Mrs Edwards asked Dray, who it seems, was acting as some kind of officer, to show his warrant or authority and she would surrender up the child This he declined to do After the child was taken from her Dray told her to keep still or he would arrest her A little daughter of Mrs. Edwards ran up to Jacobi just as the three were about to leave the house, and asked of him the privilege to kiss the child before it was taken away to which he replied by telling her to get away or he would knock her down Having taken the child by violent means into their possession the three left the house and returned to the city It was claimed by the defense that Mrs Edwards, insane to some extent who was the father of the child, had endeavored to extort black mail To this end, a letter was introduced into court by the attorney, purporting to have been written by Mrs E to the reputed father The letter stated substantially that the writer had possession of an infant, that she had been paid $25 for its keeping, that there was still due her the sum of $75, and that unless that amount was forthcoming at once, trouble would be made This letter was sent by the reputed father after its receipt to Dr Glass, with the inquiry how it was that money was still due for the keeping of the child. It was proven on the trial that Glass, when he left the house with the child, told Mrs Edwards that if she would call at his office on the following morning, he would pay her what amount was still due her It was proved by one witness on the part of the defense, that Mrs Edwards had stated that she did not propose to give up the child, and that she had stated that it was her intention to make a thousand dollars out of it

Judge Denny, after a careful and impartial hearing of the case, fined each of the defendants $25 and costs. The case was appealed to the Circuit Court

Altogether, the case is rather confused and mysterious It may possess some phases which subsequent investigation may disclose that will materially change the relations of the several parties involved We have given the meager outlines as the evidence has developed them Without any disposition to comment, or do injustice to any of the parties, one thing is certain that the defendants had no right to obtain possession of the child in the manner in which they did The Court very wisely and judiciously found them guilty of a breach of the peace

ORDER ENTERED.—The following order was entered in the United States District Court on Monday, received from Judge Sawyer

Circuit Court of the United States District of Oregon In pursuance of the provisions of Section the third of the Act entitled 'An Act to amend an Act, approved May 31st, 1870 entitled an Act to enforce the rights of citizens of the United States to vote in the several States of the Union, and for other purposes,' and of the provisions of Section one of "An Act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30 1873 and for other purposes, Approved June 10th, 1872 I do hereby designate, name, appoint and assign Honorable Matthew P Deady, District Judge of the United States for the District of Oregon to be one of the District Judges of the United States within the Ninth Judicial Circuit to discharge and perform in my place and stead in and for said District of Oregon any and all duties arising under the provisions of said several Acts and any Acts supplementary to or amendatory thereof, And it is ordered that this designation and appointment be entered in the minutes of the Circuit Court for the District of Oregon

LORENZO SAWYER,
Judge of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Ninth District

NOT SO GOOD.—For the first few days after the street car track reached in the course of its construction, the Nicholson pavement, a general rush was made by numerous persons to secure for fuel the loose blocks of wood thrown one side The impression existed that such tar soaked blocks would make capital firewood. The supposition was certainly correct in one particular for the fuel burned with a florescence unquenchable that would make the stove red hot in a few minutes and drive persons from the room with the heat The burning coal tar raised a suffocating smoke in parlors, and proved to be totally unfit for cull inary purposes. Food cooked by these blocks possessed a strong smell, suggestive of coal tar, against which offended palates offer no mild protest. These blocks are not in such popular demand, and now beg in the market. Cord wood is more highly prized Nicholson blocks are capital for rallroading meetings, along with tar barrels that elicit a success for household purposes

DEATH OF AN OLD SETTLER.—Jos McNemee a notice of whose death will be found in the appropriate place was one of the pioneer settlers of Portland, having settled on this town site in the year 1849, and in fact laid claim to the town site as a donation claim, and carried the case through all the courts and to the Secretary of the Interior where it was decided against him He was one of those large hearted kind of men that we meet with occasionally and who will always be remembered by those who knew him as a high minded honorable man. Mr McNemee's death was sudden and unexpected For years he had been seriously afflicted with the asthma which of late assumed a very threatening form Late day about noon he fell down partially insensible at the house of his son in law, and after linger ing a few hours died. The funeral services will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of E J Northrup, corner of Seventh and Madison streets.

LARGE DEER.—A very large deer was seen yesterday hanging in front of one of the meat markets The animal weighed 220 pounds, and was in splendid condition It was killed near the Cascades a few days ago

WILSON'S CIRCUS SEIZED FOR DEBT.—We learn from our regular Oregon City correspondent that on Wilson's Circus horses and baud wagon were passing through that town on the way to the State Fair yesterday morning, the Sheriff served an attachment of $3 600 and took possession of them Omar Kingsley and the principal performers were carried to Salem by the cars On Kingsley's arrival at the depot he was informed of the state of affairs and went no further Three years ago it will be remembered a lady named Riley had her arm fractured through the breaking down of the seats at Wilson's Circus at a performance in that city She sued Wilson and obtained $3 000 damages Wilson disclaimed any ownership—and the damages were not collected This is the first appearance of the same circus since Chas L. Warren Esq the lady's lawyer had it appears quietly waited events and was on hand when they entered town yesterday morning Mr Kingsley being in a small place where he is a stranger is placed in a difficult position to procure bonds It is a great loss to the company to be thus detained at State Fair time The band wagon and one other and about twenty horses are seized

FIVE VESSELS.—The steamer Olympia now at this port, is one of the finest and most commodious vessels which has ever yet visited this port She was built expressly for the Sound trade where she has been plying several years The Olympia is built very much in style of model like the Oneonta with the exception that the former steamer is built much higher out of the water and constructed so as to buffet successfully the rough northern seas She is a very rapid vessel and when in good running condition can make from 18 to 20 knots per hour with ease On the last trip from San Francisco to this port she made the passage in about the same time as the Orizaba and used only one boiler during the voyage As a safe and rapid traveler the Olympia has few equals and no superiors on the Northwest coast The freight and passenger accommodations are in no respect inferior to the John L Stephens or Orizaba The interior of the cabin is elegantly furnished and the sleeping berths all comfortably and neatly arranged with reference to the accommodation of passengers Good taste neatness and judicious appointments characterize every quarter of the vessel

RIVALRY.—There appears to exist a large degree of good natured and not unwholesome rivalry between the respective captains and crews of those splendid steamers the Dixie Thompson and Oneonta on the question of speed Every opportunity is improved which allows of a test of their traveling powers Last evening both boats entered the mouth of the Wallamet at the same time, and naturally contended for the supremacy The Dixie Thompson had scarcely made fast to her wharf before the Oneonta was rounding at Stark street. Although the latter craft was distanced, she made her rival do some tall traveling to accomplish the feat

PASSENGERS.—The following passengers arrived on the steamer Olympia, in addition to 35 passengers belonging to the Circus Company John Savage, Mrs Harriet Savage and 3 children, Mrs Tarbox and 3 children, W W Decker, Mrs Mary E Swan Percy Webster, Mrs Perry Watson and 2 children, A Lynch, Mrs Lynch and 2 children, Jacob Kyser, Mrs Kyser and 3 children, W L Peters, Geo Green, Allen Spencer, D T Archer A W Mann, J W Trout, Mr Miller, Mrs Miller and boy.

FROM THE MINES.—About 50 Chinamen came down last evening from The Dalles Each "John" was tottering under a heavy burden of baggage Those celestials are miners having come from the several mining camps of Idaho and Eastern Oregon Mining operations being about closed in those auriferous fields, for the present season, these gold seekers have flocked hither to spend the winter with their comrades and feast on rats and rice, and indulge in their usual opiate entertainments

JEWISH HOLIDAY.—To morrow, the 3d, at sundown, will commence the Jewish New Year, or Rosh Ha Shanah By the Jewish calendar, the new year will be 5 633 The festival, which will be observed by all Hebrews, is solemn, religious and charitable. Services will be celebrated in the Synagogues of the city Saturday, October 12th, will be Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement Both these days will be strictly observed by the closing of stores, and the suspension of all labor

BEEF CATTLE.—One hundred and twenty head of splendid beef cattle, were brought down last evening on the steamer Oneonta These cattle belong to Spaulding & Co, of this city and are intended to supply the several meat markets of Portland They were fattened East of the mountains Blue best won't stand any decent show at all along side such steaks as these cattle will make Epicureans will no longer chew tough steaks and grumble, for a season at least

NUMBER OF ARRESTS.—During the past month, the following number of arrests have been made by the police force Drunk and disorderly, 121 assault and battery, 15, larceny, 4 obscene language 2 fast driving 3 exposure of person 1, murder, 1, carrying concealed weapons 2 vagrancy, 2, peddling without a license 1, resisting an officer, 1 defacing property, 1; outside warrants, 1, bones-breaking, 1 Total, 163

TERRIBUS SCENES.—Several emigrants took the boat this morning for some portion of Washington Territory These families, it would appear have tried Webfoot to their heart's content but becoming disgusted with our fertile soil and genial climate, concluded to seek the mythical pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow—the rail road terminus.

THE OREGONIAN AT SALEM.—As our carrier Osmon Royal has doubled his order for the Daily, our friends on the Fair Grounds and in Salem will experience no trouble in getting the latest news from all points by procuring copies of the OREGONIAN

CHANGE.—As per consequence of the change in the time of the departure of the train from Salem we did not receive the mails until quite late last evening The cars leave the Fair Grounds at 5:30 and arrive here about 8 30 This arrangement is temporary—only continuing through the present week

PROBABLY AN OPPOSITION.—We are reliably informed that after all, the steamer Olympia will probably continue on the Portland and San Francisco line She will sail to morrow evening with freight and passengers and will more than likely continue to make regular trips hereafter

EXTRA CARS.—The exodus Fairward is so great that it is found necessary to place on the road several extra cars Yesterday five cars, crowded with passengers went up; As the Fair progresses more extra cars will have to be added to accommodate the increased travel

LARGE THEATRE.—The number of persons comprising Wilson's Circus Company, including scenic attaches, etc, is more than thirty five persons and about forty horses This is by far the largest company which has ever visited the State

IN TWO DAYS.—The bark Edward James arrived on Monday at Port Townsend She made the passage from the mouth of the Columbia to that port in the short space of two days without the assistance of steam Good time

WELL ATTENDED.—The funeral of Dr H A Bodman was attended yesterday by a large number of friends and members of the Masonic fraternity and Grand Army of the Republic

SALE OF PEWS.—The pews in the Presbyterian church of this city will be sold to morrow at 2 o clock P M to the highest bidder

WANTED.—John Sinclair Renton of Stromness Scotland last heard of in this city is wanted by J M Sabiston of Nanaimo British Columbia John come to the front

TRAVEL.—Travel is now quite lively both up and down the Columbia The Dixie Thompson and Oneonta brought an unusually large list of passengers last evening

IN TOW.—The bark LAND is in tow of the Eva Hayward and will arrive to day at the wharf The St will probably arrive in the course of a few days

FAST TIME.—The steamer Dayton made the trip from Astoria to this port between the hours of 9 A M and 5 P M—8 hours

NEXT TUESDAY.—The United States District Court adjourned yesterday until next Tuesday morning at 10 o clock

TO SAIL.—The steamship Oriflamme will sail for San Francisco this afternoon, with freight and passengers

MINNIE MYRTLE ON JOAQUIN.

From the San Francisco Call's report of Mrs. Miller's lecture on her former husband, delivered in that city on the 25th ult., we gather the following. Mrs. Miller began her lecture thus:

Joaquin Miller, the Poet of the Sierras, is not my individual property. He belongs to the world of poetry and of letters. But this world of poetry and letters must bear in mind that he was mine before he had gone through that the process which made him valuable to the world. As a diamond in the rough, he belonged to me, and as such, I propose to tell you of him. I do not come before you as a wronged or deserted wife. I do not come to complain. The course of our life has developed a new phase of human nature, and no one is injured to any great extent. I have the experience, and the world has the poet. But I look back through the ghastly shadows of the past—and I see

LORD BYRON AND LADY BYRON.

Then I look away down the columned years of the future and see another—Harriet Beecher Stowe. I have come to confront this woman of the future, and spoil her fine sensation prospects. The career of Joaquin Miller, as a poet, has been more remarkable than that of any other known. The career of the man, has not been less remarkable. I suppose, Joaquin commenced writing verses very early. I have I think, about the first poem that he ever published—the date is 1861. He had no poetic training, and but little experience. He left home at the age of fourteen, and the interesting years had been spent mostly in the shadow of Mount Shasta,

WITH RED MEN AND WOMEN FOR COMPANIONS.

The poet-boy, with his yellow hair and blue eyes, had heard of Joaquin Murrietta, the Spanish bandit, and thought him the greatest man of the age. To be like Joaquin was the dream of his life. Adventure spiced with danger was his constant pursuit. If he did not have the discretion, sagacity and subtlety of the Poet of the Sierras, he at least had the persistent energy and indutatigable industry which characterizes Joaquin Miller.

WHAT MADE THE POET HAPPY.

He once said to me, "I never was so happy in my life as I was when I returned to the Valley, and some little children ran away from me as I approached, and said in frightened whispers to each other, 'There goes the man who kills people.' I was notorious, and people said as I passed, 'There he goes.'"

HOW MINNIE AND JOAQUIN MET.

I sometimes see in the daily paper advertisements by young ladies or gentlemen proposing a correspondence with a view to matrimony. Now, one of the morals which I shall point to-night is that all persons should forbear from entering into a marriage of this kind but I know that there are scores of young men and women in the world to-day who are just as romantic as were Joaquin Miller and myself when we were wed at Cape Blanco ten years ago." Here Mrs. Miller gave a vivid picture of the wild desolateness of Cape Blanco, with its rugged rocks, crooked trees and black foam-broken waves rolling in upon the bleak and windy shore. And then she went on to say: "In this gloomy place I lived with my aged father and mother. A little lisping river ran between the ocean and the house where I lived. This river was fordable at low water; but we kept a ferry-boat for high tide for the accommodation of persons who came at full tide. I tended this ferry most by myself, and many a time rowed a boat about or paddled a canoe across the stream, and while the embryo poet was bowing down in the worship of Joaquin the bandit, I had vague dreams of making a Grace Darling of myself or an Ida Lewis."

SHE WRITES SOME FATAL LINES.

"Living then in this doleful place, and isolated from the companionship of young women—there was not another young girl within thirty miles of Cape Blanco—I became most gushingly sentimental. To brighten the romance of the ideal world which I had formed, of Lord Byron's poetry in one of the miners cabins, and through the wintry weather I pored over the book. I read all the beautiful and naughty things ever written by the great bard. About this time I wrote the fatal lines which drew Joaquin Miller to my side. A schooner was wrecked off Cape Arago, and I deemed that a fit subject for my pathetic verse. Oregon editors were not then the critical literary men that they are now and the lines were printed."

MILLER REDS THE FATAL LINES.

"Joaquin, or Cincinnatus Miller, was then running an express at Salmon river, in opposition to Wells, Fargo & Co. Looking over the columns of the village paper, his dreamy poetic eye settled upon these lines."

JOAQUIN WRITES TO MINNIE.

"He sat down and wrote me a letter. His handwriting was not as good then as it is now, and I have never been able to wholly decipher it. I answered it to the best of my ability, not being able to make out exactly what it was."

THE GREAT WRONG MINNIE DID.

"Here is a great wrong which I did the dreamy susceptible young man, for which I shall not hold myself guiltless, I wrote to him the most beguiling letters I possible could. By my letters I lured him to that silent sea-shore. You all know something of his confiding, unsuspecting nature. I wrote letters descriptive of the wild, romantic scenery. I told him of the gloomy pines and the moaning cedar; of the wild roses and gay flowers that crowned the bluffs; of the spotted fishes that stole away up through the silent streams; of the white lagoon and the little sailboat that waited on its shores at my behest; of the birds that shrieked from their nests upon the reefs and floated in dizzy flocks down the little river; and then I told him of my own desolate life, of my longing for a congenial spirit, etc., etc. I told him that

A DELIGHTFUL, DREAMY TRAIL.

Wound over the mountains, and if he would come I would ferry him over the river in my little boat."

MRS. MILLER AS A SIREN.

"'Now I say this in the behalf of the Poet of the Sierras: What young man, who had the embryo nature of a poet within him, could do less than forsake the cold delusive realms of Salmon river, and, ignoring the roses and pinks of the Wallamet, turning a deaf ear to the tender voices of the maidens of Eugene, seek the poetry and grandeur of the sea-shore? He told me afterwards, that as he crossed the rugged mountain steeps, he thought of that young lady in mythology. Who was she?—the Siren who lured young gentlemen to her side by her mellow music, and then devoured them."

JOAQUIN DESCENDS THE BLUFFS ON A "SPOTTED COURSER."

"Joaquin Miller is peculiar in his attachment for dumb brutes. This is evident in his portrayal of Kit Carson's love for the blind Paohe. He had a horse that he loved. This is the 'Spotted Courser' mentioned in 'Even So.' On Tuesday evening, September 3, 1862, Mr. Miller descended the bluffs, about one mile from our residence, riding upon his spotted horse.

"I saw him coming, from my little window, and surveyed him through my opera glass. He stopped before the door, dismounted and came in. The dashing Roman General who captured Cleopatra could not have been more dignified. I felt the magnitude of the situation, and tried to assume the bearing of a Spartan maiden, but failed. Not knowing what else to do, I asked him to come in, sit down and make himself at home." For four of five days the pair lived in an atmosphere of poetry," and then they were married. Mrs. Miller wound up this portion of her story with the remark, "It was mostly my fault. Joaquin has often reproached me for it, and I feel the justice of his reproach. It is true."

"Minnie's people were notivery well pleased with her choice; in fact, they made the choosing remark that she had better have been 'a corpse.' Mrs. Miller accounted for this by explaining that the rider on the spotted courser did not make himself agreeable to the inhabitants of Cape Blanco. He traveled too much on his dignity. He used to 'wave them off" with that peculiar smile of his—all below the eyes.

A "MARY CHAWORTH."

"I found that Joaquin was no longer my poet's idol. He had read Lord Byron's poetry and letters, and had found in him a model worthy of imitation. The next step was to find a Mary Chaworth. He selected a Willamette girl for this character, but she did not play the part very well, I think. Her father was a lawyer, and Joaquin became a law student in Mary Chaworth's father's office. He claimed and tried to prove that his father and Mary's mother were remote cousins, but I don't think the old people ever could see it."

MARY CHAWORTH DIDN'T PLAY HER PART WELL.

"Mary was a fine looking woman—a very queen in appearance; fond of fun, healthy and sensible. Had never read Lord Byron's history, had no taste for poetry and was indifferently educated. I don't know just how it was managed. He paid his addresses to her. I always believed she accepted him; but he says she was cold and cruel and he heart-broken." At any rate she did marry a man who was fond of dogs and horses, and Joaquin wrote a piece—a poem—'To Mary.' It was entitled, 'Why I Like to be Alone.'"

THE POET'S BULLET MARK.

"Then my poet went to Shasta and engaged in Indian fights, and was wounded in the face by an arrow and was bitten in the wrist by a dog. This he passes off as a bullet mark, and returned to Eugene, and commenced writing poetry and stories. This Byronic era occurred there shortly before he came to the sea coast. Little did I dream that he was coming in search of a Lady Byron. 'We were married and next day started across the East Mountains.'"

SHE LEFT HER HOME SORROWFULLY.

"We lived six months in Eugene, during which time Mr. Miller had charge of a political paper. It was first called the Democratic Register, but one month after our marriage it was suppressed by order of General Wright."

JOAQUIN RUNS A "LIVE" PAPER.

"He changed its name to the Eugene City Review, called it a literary paper and continued to publish it. He was fiery in his editorials, and often manufactured his telegraphic news. He became tired of this and determined to enter a literary life. Poor boy, he didn't know what it meant then. He sold out his interest in the Review and we started for this city. When he removed, Asahel Bush, who was the editor of the Statesman, noticed his departure thus: 'Mr. Miller has made a very efficient editor. The advertisements were always well conducted, and the marriages and deaths ably recorded.'"

JOAQUIN LIVES BY HIS WITS IN FRISCO—HIS QUART OF LAGER.

"When we first came to this city nine years ago last April, Joaquin Miller had his wits about him. His true he made mistakes, but every mistake was a step in his education by which he profited. A few of my Bohemian friends may remember the circular steps on Folsom, near First, and the little room in which we spent some social evenings. Joaquin Miller then engaged in a game of seuhre with us, and brought in a quart cup filled with lager, and was really a genial, sociable, Bohemian." Mr. Miller wrote nothing in San Francisco; when his money was exhausted he returned to Cape Blanco, left Mrs. Miller there and pushed out for the mines of Eastern Oregon."

JOAQUIN'S RECEIPT FOR BECOMING FAMOUS.

"He then intended that our separation should be permanent, but no one knew it but I. He said to me: 'A man never becomes famous until he leaves his wife, or does something atrocious to bring himself into notice; and literary men never get along well with their wives. Lord Byron separated from his wife and some of my friends think I am a second Byron.' Thus he left me." Mrs. Miller passed a lonely winter. Her baby was born, and in the spring she again heard of Joaquin. He had gone with a party upon a mad expedition into the Indian country, and the party returned defeated and dispirited—Joaquin with it. He then wrote to her to come to him, as he intended to establish himself in Canyon City as a lawyer. He met her, and they had a lonely and dangerous journey across the mountains.

JOAQUIN PRACTICES LAW AND WRITES.

"At Canyon City, Grant county, Mr. Miller went into the practice law. There were about a dozen of lawyers in the place. It was a lively little camp. Mr. Miller still continued to write, but had great difficulty in getting in print. He sometimes got me to copy a poem and send it in my name to be printed. I did this to accomodate him; and when the divorce was obtained, in Lane county, he testified that he had written all the pieces published by me, that did me any credit, in the last seven years. He did this to prove that I was not competent to take care of my children, though how in the world the fact of my being the author of these little newspaper verses would make me better competent to take care of my babies, I don't know; but this is on record in the courts of Lane county. But he wrote other things while in Grant county. He wrote a series of articles for the Dalles Mountaineer, which he called 'Pickles.' These articles created quite a commotion in Canyon City. He had in those articles the names of all the citizens in the place, and they were a kind of record of events. These pieces were considerably humorous, but vulgar and almost obscene at times. Every lady was indignant."

JOAQUIN AT HOME.

"In the first election of county officers in this newly organized county, Mr. Miller was elected County Judge by the Democratic voters. The salary was $1,200 a year, and Mr. Miller, by carrying out his strict ideas of economy, could now have some time to devote to the muses. Mr. Miller purchased a house and lot on the hill above the town, and this place for four years we called our home. This home was a marvel to the camp. On the side toward the town he built with his own hands a wall of boards, nailed closely together. This wall was so high that I could not see over it—not even by tip-toeing. He said he built this fence to keep the chickens out. Inside this inclosure was a variety of decorations. The sunflowers were the prominent feature. These plants he cultivated with the tenderest care. The soil being fine, they grew to a wonderful height, and bloomed radiantly. He arranged these flowers in a most artistic manner. He had them planted in circles about the door, and in clusters by the walk, and all around the well, and in long straight rows by the fence, and under the eaves, and throughout the inclosure these sunflowers turned their yellow faces toward the sun. The front yard he had devoted to the culture of vegetables—first a row of corn, then a row of potatoes; here a little patch of peas, and there a bed of turnips. Along the walk he had sown wheat and oats, and a few voluptuous poppies nodded with the golden grain. In the back yard he had some choice roses, which he had brought from his mother's garden, of different varieties—dahlias, pinks, fuschias, and many of the garden flowers grew and bloomed here, half neglected. At intervals throughout this garden were planted fruit trees—apple, pear, plum or cherry. A pretty little stream gurgled through the yard, and fell in gentle echoes down the sloping hill below."

THE POETRY MANUFACTORY.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, with your permission, I will introduce you into the poetic workshop. We go up an outside stairway, enter a hall, and from thence a small, dingy room, which is ostensibly the office of the County Judge of Grant county, but really the poetic workshop of the 'Poet of the Sierras.' And here we behold the artist at work. There is a long table covered with black oil-cloth and furnished with drawers. Scattered over this table are books, papers, stationery and manuscripts. At this table sits the artist, poring over a large open book. His pen rests in a specious inkstand, ready for use. A page of foolscap is spread before him, on which we see written, with irregular dashes between them, the words 'over, clever, over, clover, fire, desire,' and so on. We glance at the book spread before him. It is a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. The poet is searching for euphonious words. We look at the books on the table. Here is a rhyming dictionary, late numbers of British and American reviews, Harper's, Leslie's, Brick Pomeroy's Democrat, etc., etc. Upon the shelves are the British poets, in bound volumes, arranged in rows; then the American poets and authors, Victor Hugo's works, the Waverly Novels, some Latin authors, ancient and modern history and biography. There are Rollin, Rosseau, Voltaire, Bulwer, and many others. On the other side of the house is

THE LAW LIBRARY.

A large family Bible lies upon a table in it. Is this Bible used? Indeed it is. Every evening at a certain hour the poet opens this Bible, draws his huge inkstand closer, gives the already disabled pen a fierce thrust into its depths and reads. He reads quickly, for his eye is quick and his perception ready. Whenever a new word or phrase occurs, or anything pretty in sound, the pen is drawn; dripping, from the inkstand, and the word or pretty expression is transcribed upon the foolscap before him. No one who chances to enter this realm of poetry would suspect what my lord is doing; for who, without long and careful practice, could decipher his handwriting? The next day it is my work to translate these abbreviated words and sentences, and arrange them upon a new sheet of paper. I shall find the words "city" and "pity" applied with two "t's," and "happy" and "sappy" spelled with one "p."

JOAQUIN MAKING IT "HOT" FOR VISITORS.

"Prominent above all the books scattered over the table is a ponderous law volume opened and a leaf carefully turned down. If a footstep in heard in the hall, before the door has time to swing open, this volume is across the poet's knee, and the perplexed legal scowl is upon his brow. But the visitor, unless he is a favorite, does not remain long, although the Judge talks eloquently and lays his white hand familiarly upon his shoulder, and blandly insists upon his sitting still. Why does he not remain? The room is small; there is but one window, and that is closed; in the corner is a large bar-room stove. Behind the stove is a wood-box, heaped up with dry fire-wood. Mr. Miller arises when his visitor enters, shivers a little and says he feels chilly; then opens the door of the stove and fills it with wood. In a few minutes the stove is red hot, and the visitor sits fanning himself with an almanac until he can stand it no longer, when he arises and goes out. The artist then closes the draught, opens the window and resumes his work. 'That is the only way I can do,' he would say to me. 'They would sit and talk for hours if I did not make it too warm for them.'"

CULLING GENIUS.

Mrs. Miller then went on to remark that Miller was quick in perceiving genius in others, and careful in culling it from conversation as well as from books. Among the the mixed frontier population of such new States as Oregon are to be found many original characters and men of erratic genius; men who have also traveled in many climes. These Joaquin made friends with. He cultivated them, drew them out and absorbed them; brought out all the pathos and sentiment they had in them, stereotyped it ready for use, and then cast them off. Friendship was cherished as long as it was of tangible benefit to him; when it was not he repudiated it, leaving his former friends to wonder at his caprice. Said Mrs. Miller: "He always carried innumerable blank books and pencils about him; and often, when I was facetious or hypochondrical, and would make use of some word or expression he had not heard before, he would say: 'Now, Kitty, is that original, or did you get it out of some book?' If I answered 'original' he would put it down." He always planned for future greatness, and even wrote his letters to Mrs. Miller with an idea that they might be published hereafter, making them thereby often mystical and unintelligible to her.

HE IMITATES BYRON.

He imitated Byron because he was a great admirer of him. Byron hated literary women; ergo, Joaquin professed a horror of literary women. He kept his literary library in his law-office, and when I would ask him for information on politics, literature or current topics, he would tell me not to seek to know anything—that I was more attractive to him as I was." "Lord Byron," said Mrs. Miller, "merely for the sake of being witty, said that he 'could not endure to see a

BEAUTY AT BREAKFAST,

And in consequence my poet always spoke of women who enjoyed a good meal derisively—called them 'gormandizers,' and the like. He never liked to see me partake of much food. Of course, I was interested in making myself agreeable. I had a desire to please my poetic liege, and I went hungry until I became quite pale and interesting. But it was all in vain, for my poet went down to the classic shades of Oregon and made love to a bonny Willamette girl, who weighed 200 pounds and who ate all she wanted." Then Mrs. Miller proceeded to sketch

THE POET'S RETURN HOME;

How he chilled all his early friends with a frigid hautier. Here is her story of her meeting with him: "He came to the residence of Mrs. Cooke, in Salem, to see me. I was in the north room, braiding Maud's hair, and Joaquin entered the parlor. A deathly silence fell upon the house after he came. The children's voices were hushed, and poor little Belle Cooke, herself a poetess, moved about the house on tip-toe' awed by the majestic silence of Joaquin. I entered. The poet did not rise. He scarcely raised his eyes, and held out his hand to me, with studied formality. I asked him how he was, and half a dozen other questions before he answered, and then, he only waved his hand.

THAT BYRONIC HALT.

"When he walked down the street, his friends who had known him long, and to whom his quick elastic step and erect figure were so familiar, marveled much to see him walking lame, and to see the slow, hesitating step and slightly bent figure. I don't know who wrote the pen pictures of Joaquin Miller which have been floating around the country, but if any one will take the trouble to compare it with Lady Blessington's description of Lord Byron, they will find the two descriptions strangely alike."

A GIFT ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

"Last winter," said Mrs. Miller, "Joaquin sent little Maud a present of jewelry. He had been writing about it for months. Here is how it came about: Just after I left Portland it came. I received a package of papers in the mail. Upon opening it, out it dropped—a huge chain, which looked like the coil of a magnificent serpent, and a quaint-looking locket. I picked it up tenderly; I looked at it; tasted it—it was brass, and must have cost the poet about twenty-five cents. But you know it isn't the value of a gift that makes it precious."

"MARY CHAWORTH" AND INDIGESTION.

However, the affairs of Grant county did not go on very well under Judge Miller. His "conception of right and wrong is very faulty," said Mrs. Miller, and to this she added kindly, "I regard this as an apology for much that he does and does not do." Mr. Miller prepared to move; but previous to this, "Mary Chaworth" lost his favor. The poet said he had heart disease, and nothing would apparently convince him to the contrary. He "would take no medicine. He made his will, and wrote his epitaph and a gloomy poem about death. I felt sadly enough. Mary came up, and observing his symptoms, immediately pronounced his stomach out of order, and recommended cod liver oil. The notion of heart disease was pretty, but the introduction of cod liver oil by her who had been the 'starlight of his boyhood' was not in the programme,"

THE "SPOTTED COURSER."

Soon after this, Joaquin published his book of poems, "Joaquin, et al.," was elated by its success, and prepared to go to London, but to his wife's disappointment, ordered her back to her mother's, at Cape Blanco. "His next step was to provide for the 'spotted courser,' the horse that had borne him over many a dreary trail—the horse that had served him so long and so faithfully; the horse that had borne him to my side—that had carried his baby in many a pleasant ride. He loved that horse. He often told me that he loved that horse and me better than anybody; but

"Whosoever loved but had the thought
That they and all they loved must part!"

He sold his horse just before going to London, to a pack train, for $34 75."

When Mr. Miller went to London, Mrs. Miller returned to her old home, to find the settlement broken down and ruined. She was there, as he said in a parting letter, "left high and dry, as it were, with a little babe in your arms."

She became very ill, and continued sick after going to Portland for change of scene. While she was sick, Joaquin obtained a divorce from her. The lecturer said, ironically: "This divorce was obtained in Lane county. I was not present and know little about the management of it. It was a part of the programme. He had already prepared 'Myrrh,' and the divorce was essential to give force to the poem. He then wrote to me: 'You had better marry some good fellow and settle down.' The 'good fellow' has not yet made his appearance."

THE FAME OF JOAQUIN.

The circumstances under which the fame of Joaquin Miller drifted to her were such that she did not feel that ecstacy that she might otherwise have felt. She was without money or experience, partially ill, with the cares of a young baby upon her. In this condition in December, 1870, she found herself living in a miserable garret over a Chinese wash-house, on Front street, Portland. Her brother's wages just kept the wolf from the door. She had attempted to earn a pittance by her needle, but not being a professional dressmaker, did not command large enough wages to assist her much. One day, as she sat in her garret, thinking of "Hood's Song of the Shirt,"

"Seam and gusset and band,
And band and gusset and seam,
Till over the buttons I fell asleep
And saw them in a dream,"

A scrap of paper that had come wrapped around a package, was lying on the floor, and the name of Joaquin Miller caught her eye. Picking it up, she read: "Joaquin Miller, the new California poet, was present at a dinner in London," etc. This was the first she had heard of him for months, and she looked around at his babes and thought of the past, and in the bitterness of her heart, the words of Cardinal Wolsey rose to her lips: "Oh, my God, if I had loved Thee as I have loved this man, would'st Thou then have forsaken me?" It must not be imagined that what she has said would WOUND THE PRIDE OR INJURE THE FEELINGS OF JOAQUIN.

Miller should it reach his ears. In her observations of the positions in which men move in the world she thought she had discovered what honor is. The dishonest merchant who will allow himself to be sued by his washerwoman, and who will cheat his workmen out of their wages, if he has a note maturing in the bank will strain every nerve to meet it, because his honor is at stake. The gambler who will compare with his fellows to rob a man—let him lose a bet at a 'respectable' gambling table and he will move heaven and earth to pay it because his honor lies there. If you tell a prize-fighter that he has no more strength than a woman, you wound his honor. Joaquin Miller may hear it said that he is selfish, or deceitful, or penurious; that he has left his babes to starve while he wanders in a strange land; that he has debased himself by an impure life; that he has been faithless to his friends or made himself ridiculous in society, and he will enjoy the notoriety, but tell him that he cannot write a good poem, and you wound his pride and arouse his indignation.

NOT ABLE TO ASSIST JOAQUIN.

In concluding, the lecturess disclaimed all intention to injure the fame of Mr. Miller, and denied that she had assisted him in manufacturing his poems, stating that she once wrote a little poem as an experiment, Joaquin inditing a poem reflecting upon herself, besides other "love poems," addressed to "Merinda," "Sophie" and "Lonin," all names of Web-foot demes, who witnessed their names in print with utter consternation. Mrs. Miller then repeated the "gem" in question, to convince her audience that she could not have had a hand upon in her husband's frenzied effusions. But the poem created a somewhat different impression. It possessed considerable merit, though the reader's elocution did not do it justice.

Mrs. Miller, when she had read it, thanked her audience and withdrew.

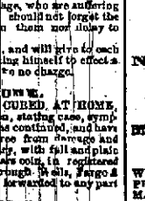
TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES. NEW REMEDIES
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,
623 KEARNY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established 1854, for the treatment of Seminal and Sexual Diseases, the Consequences of Self-Abuse, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of a constitutional nature) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.


DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.
The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.
Horrible Diseases.
How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, dreading, dying from the effects of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies, and they are certain to be cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. He therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.
Seminal Weakness.
Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz.: Sallow complexion, pimples under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rustling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching any one, loss of memory, aversion to society, love of solitude, lassitude, blotches on the face, nervous debility, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should any of these symptoms exist, either in person or by letter, and you be afflicted by the new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. B. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was ever at all afflicted with this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.
MARRIED MEN.
Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these formidable maladies should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them now many to obtain immediate relief.
DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or refund no charge.
CURED AT HOME.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has existed, and how medicine promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.
All communications strictly confidential.
Caution to the Unfortunate.
Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary one of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are frauds and deceive too many to the ruin of their lives. Some are graduates of nunneries, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten have no ability to cure, there is no use in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.
Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,967.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,937 ON THE LETTER.
Consultations FREE.
Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they saw this advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.
